2019 Reading Challenge

I've finished 55 books so far this year, and with some travel coming up, hope to finish off a few that I've had queued up for far too long.

I like an eclectic variety of books—biographies, history, chick lit, historical fiction, business, memoir, best sellers, etc. I like to mix up what I'm reading, bouncing around between genres, and while I may get a clunker now and again, I'm pleasantly surprised at the great authors and stories I've discovered.

This is my recommendation for this October, perfect for Fall and Halloween reading.

Arguably the most famous and most visited cemetery in the world, Père-Lachaise is a 107-acre labyrinth housing an eternal “salon” of luminaries from the worlds of art, design, literature, the performing arts and more. Boasting the final resting places of more celebrated artists and thinkers than any other location in the world, the cemetery has, in the last century, become a pilgrimage site for visitors from all over the world to pay their respects. It is also a magnificent open-air museum of sculpture and architecture, representing the first revolutionary design in memorial parks and the fourth most popular destination for the 65 million tourists who visit Paris each year (behind the Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame, and the Arc de Triomphe).

You can find all the books I've read so far this year in my Amazon Influencer Store here. I'll be updating it frequently and hope you'll check often and find something you like.
